Conditional Probability

Edward Jex

February 23, 2020

Sometimes it is more useful to find the probability of an event A given than an event B has occurred. We write this $p(A \mid B)$.

The conditional probability is defined as:

$p(A \mid B) = \frac{p(A \cap B)}{p(B)}$